Scenario

At FamilySearch, we hope to build the family tree of all mankind. We want every person in this world, whether members of our faith or not, to be able to have inspiring and joyful experiences discovering, gathering, and connecting their family – past, present, and future. While we have a wonderful community of FamilySearch patrons to help build to this family tree, we know that we need people from all parts of the earth and all generations contributing to the family tree to make it more complete. Because of this, new accounts on FamilySearch are a key part of what we measure and learn from.

Not all new FamilySearch accounts created behave the same. Some are members of our faith, but most are not. People come to our site for a variety of reasons. Attached is a sample of new user accounts from the last 6 months of 2024 and some of their summarized activity since creating their account.

What can we learn from them that will help us understand how these new users behave, especially in identifying who will be building our family tree and who will not contribute at all? Are there discernible patterns of success and patterns of struggle? Are there some accounts that are more likely to be contributing to our tree than others?

You have pulled this data to help answer some of those questions. Please generate data visualizations from the tools of your choice and be prepared to take 10-15 minutes presenting your findings to us.
